Wild Roots
Nature School
At STONEWALL FARM

Open House & Information Session
August 28th, 5:00 – 7:00 p.m.

Please join us Wednesday evening, August 28th, from 5:00 – 7:00 p.m. at Stonewall Farm for an open house and information session for the new Wild Roots Nature School, opening September 4th. Meet the director and lead teacher, see the facility and farm where the children will be learning, and meet other families interested in the program.

Wild Roots Nature School nourishes the whole child by utilizing the natural environment as a classroom. Each day, students will spend the majority of their time outdoors, learning from the seasonal rhythms of a working farm.

Nature provides an entry point for all traditional subjects we explore in life and Wild Roots nature School immerses children in this curriculum. At Wild Roots, we believe that children are natural learners and when the curriculum meets the child where they are, learning and growth can take place.

There is still time to enroll children for the 2013-2014 year. We hope to see you there!
